Three arrests and convictions were had under the city ordinances last week: two parties being fined for permitting horses to run at large through the streets, and one for leaving his team unhitched in the street. Last Thursday about noon there came down upon this devoted portion of the footstool as heavy a snowstorm as we ever saw in ye gentle Maie month. The flakes were large a mickly falling, and, looking through out upon the scurrying storm, easily fancy himself transported to period of December's blasts. Mrs. Penniman and her pupils are rapidly completing their preparations for the Concert and Cantata to be given Tuesday evening, May 26th, at the Academy of Music. Elegant costumes have just been received from the East; carpenters are now to be employed for two weeks arranging new and artistic decorations for the stage. So the public may look for something that will outshine anything ever before attempted in the Arcadia Valley. The programmes will appear in less than a week.

It is well for the county to take care of its paupers-to see that they are fed, clothed and lodged; but we don't think they ought to be given exclusive domain on the sidewalks in the south end of town. "Old Long John" is dissatisfied with his boarding-house, we understand; but that is no reason for his taking possession of the east sidewalk and sprawling all over it, to the exclusion of the general public. He sunned himself there all unday afternoon, and while he may have felt very comfortable, he was by no means ornamental.

Leroy Matkin, of Marble Creek, met with serious loss in the burning of his residence, stable and smokehouse on Sunday, the 3d of this month. We have been unable to learn the cause of the fire, as there was no one at home until the buildings and contents were nearly consumed, Mr. Matkin and family being on a visit to his mother's at the time. The house was new and not entirely completed, although he resided in it at the time. Material for finishing the house was piled up near it, and the carpenters were expected to go to work the next day and complete it. No shops.

Last Sunday No. 604's air-brakes lost their cigarettes - two for five cents - at Capt. grip on the Mace hill, and the train came down into Arcadia at the rate of sixty miles an hour, running by the station a considerable distance before it could be stopped. The "pusher" stood on the track a few yards this side of the station, and when the engineer saw the train approaching, he suspected the trouble, and pulled the throttle wide open, nor stopped until he got a safe distance. No. 601 which usually stops on the main track, awaiting the arrival of 604, had this day ran on to Hogan, the latter train being late. Suppose she had been on time, and 601 standing in the usual place, wouldn't there have been

The May Festival at the Academy of Music last Wednesday evening was a big success in every way. The attendance was very large, gentlemen and ladies of the Valley. The supper was elegant, and superbly set out under the supervision of the Arcadia House folks, while the tables were weighted down with edibles of all kinds, excellently cooked. For the young folks there was dancing, and necklace was voted to "the most popular young lady" present, who in this instance was declared to be Miss Dora Ake. Perhaps the good looks of a not very elderly relative had some bearing in the result; but of course nert had charge of the Festival, and an excellent manager he is too. A disconsolate hu-band and father had his heart so complely bowed down while attending Probate court over in Reynolds last week. that for relief he flew to the solemncholy muses. He evolved from his inner consciousness the following beautiful, tender and expressive lines:

A SAD HEART. I am here in this town, Oppressed with grief and sorrow; I wish we could adjourn

And me get home to-morrow. There I have two little boys, And two little girls: Who would chatter 'round me Like four little squirrels.

The next lesser one, We call "Esa Lee;" She has gone down below Her Grand-pa to see. The next, a larger one,

She studies her lesson And that pleases me. And there is the oldest one, We call him "Timothy Tee;" He does the little chores

Ere this, we trust, the "Sad Heart" is no onger sad and lonely, but joyful, at home with the "four little squirrels." 'Tis well he numerated them at the start; otherwise the fourth stanza might convey an uncomfortable notion that one of them was abiding in a sultry climate with her grandsire. Ed. Register-I ask space in your paper to correct a false impression that is being made upon the people of Ironton. A word of explanation will be necessary. According to our church polity, we have what is styled a Quarterly Conference, which is the church court of the Circuit or station. By this tri-monthly Conference, Stewards are elected whose duties are as follows (See discipline $201-page 121): "To take an exact account of all the money or other resources received for the support of the Preachers. * * * To make an accurate return of every expenditure of monev. * * To seek the needy and distressed in order to relieve and comfort them. To inform the preacher of any that are sick. . · To attend the the Leaders' and Stewards' liberality." "They are accountable to the Quarterly Conference for the faithful performance of their duty." Again, 9370, page 197: "The more effectively to raise the amount necessary to meet the allowances of the Ministers, let the Stewards, at the beginning of the year, estimate the amount needed monthly. Then ascertain from each member of the church, and, as far as practicable, from each attendant of the congregation, what each will give as his monthly contribution."

Now, I make no reflections upon the innocent. It is no fault of my members or connolds county poet "takes the cake," and no gregation that the above plan was not carridoubt would possess himself of a whole bak- ed out; but that it has not I am ready to ery, did such an institution grace his native declare. I also have it from the lips of the Stewards themselves that the amounts I reported to the different Quarterly Conferences were larger than the amounts reported by them. Indeed, no effort was made by either, so far as I can ascertain, to keep accurate account of the amounts they received and paid over. Then, may I not urge, how could Monday, 8th, 8 P. M .- Prize Contests in their reports, which were less than mine, argue that I had been fully or overpaid? I Tuesday, 9th, 10 a. ference, not even a question having been raised as to correctness. I cannot see what motive any Methodist preacher could have in shortening his financial reports, for whether he gets his salary, more or less, it is all the same; for when the year closes the business of the year is closed also, and there is no law in our church to collect the discrepancies, if any should exist. My books are open for examination, and whatever may be said concerning the matter of salary is said blindly, for no one has ever done me the credit to examine my accounts. But it is sufficient to say that if my reports aggregate more than those of the Stewards, and they are more than $50 short of the allotted salary, the question should end at once.

Many thanks, Mr. Editor, for your cour-

I have just returned from Outre Fork. As went out last week I saw all the farmers busy plowing and planting, and also noticed that Mr. Thompson, on the old Hughes farm, has put up about eighty rods of nice board fence. The materials are good and the work well done. It occurs to me that about where that fence stands unless a man's hair is well clinched into his scalp the wind will blow it off in winter.

Mr. Thompson also has the contract to build a schoolhouse on Mr. Ruddock's land, and is putting the lumber on the ground. Mr. and Mrs. John Webb were well.

As I went over the hill Mr. Durhmann's oig cross dogs were out in the read, but as they had no doubt seen the REGISTER, they treated me with dignified forbearance which enabled me to notice a grandly beautiful young face at the window, and after awhile I was able to sing "Mein Grossmutter's Katt." Passing on after calling on Miss Annie Duree, who is a young lady of ten years, and as pleasant a little scholar as ever crossed the loor sill of a school room, and also resting one day. Thence I passed on down the creek, calling on the old friends until the farm of Mr. Oesch was reached. That was home indeed. Pleasant looks and kind words greeted me, and there were interesting looks, and papers, good music, both vocal and instrumental, and all the surroundings pleasant. That farm looks grand. During the visit there the Sheriff of Reynolds county called to summon Mr. Oesch as a juryman. Mr Jamison is evidently a good officer.

Our High School is going quietly along. A leading event of this week is the removal of the photographic artists to the Camp Ground. Messrs Wilson and McNab leave behind them here a good record both as gentlemen and artists. As I am nothing unless exact it is desirable to furnish to the people of the Camp ground some facts in regard to the reliable character of the artists' machine. Having been tried on Father Hood nearly a dozen times it became accustomed to him and took excellent pictures. One look at my title page was rather more than it could stand. Not having had sufficient rest after the effort it failed to do justice to Dr. Mc-Kinney. But having enjoyed additional rest and having been well rubbed with Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic it came up nobly to the work and produced admirable pictures of Mr. J. E. Lowe. And then to copy the sweet and beautiful young faces which crowded the artists' tent on Tuesday evening must be even to a machine a labor of love. So that the belles of Black River can re sume their shoes and stockings, put on their store clothes and look as pretty as they can and rest assured that the machine will do them full justice. Mr. Editor .- I notice in your issue of May 7th, a statement of the above case, wherein it is stated: "The plaintiff claimed that a car load meant all that was loaded on a car, pany and was virtually eliminated from the without regard to the weight, whether 25,-000, 30,000, 40,000, or any other weight.' This, I think, is stating his claim too broadly. What he did claim is, that, as Sec. 834, Rev. Stat., prescribes the freight chargable on a car load of lumber (being $18.50 from Vulcan Switch, where his lumber was shipped, to St. Louis), and as, under Sec. 835, it was optional with the Railroad Company to receive any car load, or to receive it if it was overloaded, therefore it was the duty of the Railroad Company to determine, before receiving it, whether it was properly loaded or not; and if the Company failed to exercise that discretion, and, receiving the car, afterwards did charge a higher rate, then the Railroad Company become liable for three times the amount charged in excess of $18.50, regardless of weight. The Railroad Company, on the other hand, claimed that they had adopted certain regulations, which had become a universal custom, limiting the weight of a ear load to 20,000 pounds, and the court instructed the jury on this issue. From the verdict of the jury it is evident that they did not believe that such universal custom was proven to exist. In support of the custom, the Railroad Company contended that the law regulating Railroad charges, which was passed in 1875, when this regulation existed, did affirm and legalize the custom; and against this claim, Mr. Morris held that, as the purpose of the law was to protect shippers, it was but fair to presume that the legislature, in passing the act, intended to prevent, in the future, the very mischief caused by this arbitary regulation of the Railroad Company. Against this the Railroad Company contended that Mr. Morris' construction of the law would allow the Railroad Company to discriminate in favor of its friends; but this cannot be successfully maintained, for Sec. 821 prohibits such discrimination, both in charges and in facilities, for transportation, by abatement, drawback, or otherwise. A large number of freight bills paid by Mr. Morris were given in evidence, many of the undersigned will on which simply charged for "a car of lumber," Saturday, the 20th Day of June, 1885. carrying in weight from 20,000 pounds upwards. Contrary evidence was produced by the Railroad Company, showing that it was front door of the courthouse, in the city known that the Company claimed the right of ironton, Iron county, Missouri, sell to charge for all over 20,000 pounds, and Mr. Morris testified he knew this, but he denied that it was right. The court, differing from the jury, believed that the custom had been proven, and a new trial would be granted, unless plaintiff entered a remittur for all amounts found by the jury over the 9% rate. In deference to the court's opinion, the remittur was entered, turned to their respective homes Saturday, further litigation; but the Railroad Company pursuance of the powers in me vested by took an appeal, and so the matter stands
